Description

A Victorian oil on canvas of a Naval officer proudly showing his Baltic Campaign medal. The Baltic medal was approved for issue in 1856 to officers of the Royal Navy and Royal Marines involved in Baltic Sea operations between March 1854 and August 1855. (Crimean War). The portrait is unframed and unsigned. It shows evidence of repairs to holes and splits and some restorative overpainting. It is however characterful, decorative and historically interesting despite it being somewhat naively executed. 61 cm high by 51 cm wide.
