Description

A very fine quality 18th century mahogany desk of Chippendale style c.1760 with a fold over top, two doors to the front each housing four drawers. It has the original brown leather top, brass swan neck handles and carrying handles to the sides, sits on inverted castors and has finely carved discs to the corners of the doors. The back is a mirror image of the front with dummy cupboards therefore can free stand. The mahogany has wonderful figuring with rich colour and patina. It is a good small practical size giving extra workspace with the fold over top.
