Description

Large Heals of London 1930's Oak Dresser Base by Reynolds. This is the best example we have ever had of a solid English oak dresser base or sideboard, made for Heals of London in the early thirties by Reynolds of Ludlow in the Cotswold School manner. It is a great size, the larger version and is in excellent condition and still in the original finish. The four central drawers all run well and have the original brass handles, flanking the drawers are a pair of raised panelled cupboard doors, inside are adjustable storage shelves. This Heals of London oak dresser stands on large sledge feet with a shaped apron between them. A superb model in solid oak. Dimensions Height: 90cm (35.71") Width: 160cm (63.49") Depth: 46.5cm (18.45")
