Description

This FINE LARGE BLUE & WHITE PLATTER, decorated with the WILD ROSE PATTERN, dates from circa 1830. It is one of the best examples to be found. It has a liquid glaze (please see close up photographs) and a clear, well-detailed transfer. The Pattern is illustrated in COYSH and HENRYWOOD'S Dictionary of Blue and White Printed Pottery Vol 1 Page 399. It is taken from an engraving published in 1811 of Nuneham Courtenay, 5 miles SE of Oxford, the Seat of Earl Harcourt and noted as one of the finest landscape gardens in England at the time. There are no cracks, chips or restoration. Width: 21.5 inches (54.5 cm) Delivery within mainland Britain is included. We ship Worldwide and are happy to quote for Overseas Shipping on request.
