Description

17th century portrait of King Charles I, half-length, wearing armour and the badge of the Order of the Garter - After Sir Anthony van Dyck (1599-1641) This iconic image is a reduced version of Van Dyck's iconic three-quarter length portrait of King Charles I, datable to circa 1632-33, in the collection of The Duke of Norfolk at Arundel Castle, Sussex. As with many portraits of the monarch, versions were painted to both satisfy the demand for the King's picture in support of him during English civil war (1642-51), and also to commemorate the King after his death. This is a particularly fine, sensitively rendered and arresting version which is in an excellent state of conservation and housed in its likely original 17th century 'Lely' style frame. King Charles I (1600 - 1649) Charles was King of England, Scotland, and Ireland from 27 March 1625 until his execution in 1649. He was born into the House of Stuart as the second son of King James VI of Scotland, but after his father inherited the English throne in 1603, he moved to England, where he spent much of the rest of his life. He became heir appare...
