Description

We are delighted to offer this stunning pair of antique Victorian 18ct gold emerald and diamond earrings, made c.1890. Captivating upon first glance and enchanting with a celestial theme, this pair most certainly combines all the best elements of Victorian flair and goldsmithing. The pair is made in the form of (half) crescents with the most elegant tapering of emeralds and diamonds, set from a wide end to an incredibly intricate point. Upon closer inspection, even the tip is adorned with one tiny diamond, a level of finesse rarely seen on contemporary pieces and a wonderful example and testament to the level of detailing and craftsmanship of the Victorian era. The emeralds and diamonds are set in a way that the gold setting and claws behind are hardly visible, making use of the entire surface space to display the gems in full splendour. The curved setting and tapering truly come to life upon wearing in natural lighting as each different angle and surface reflects light in a tantalizing manner. The largest emerald is approximately 0.2ct and the largest diamond is around 7 points. Total diamond estimate for the pair 0.6ct and emerald 1.5ct. Owing to its unique...
