Description

Superb fine quality early 20th Century Colourful oil on Canvas by highly respected artist in beautiful gilt wood frame in excellent condition. Hendrik Yan Wolter, (1873 – 1952) Oil on canvass Polperro Harbour 39 x 46 inches 14250 Wonderful colours, quality and condition Wolter travelled to southern England for the first time in 1909. He visited and painted coastal and fishing towns such as Polperro, Lynmouth and St.Ives in Devon and Cornwall. He drew a lot of inspiration from his time in England and would return there often. In 1914 Wolter moved to Amsteldijk 47 in Amsterdam. The studio on the 3rd floor overlooked the Amstel and the Hoge Sluis. Here he painted a series of Amstel scenes that are considered among his best-known works. The outbreak of the First World War made travelling abroad impossible. During those war years Wolter painted ports, rivers, cities and village views in the Netherlands, including in Zeeland (Veere, Tholen, Zierikzee), but also in Amsterdam and Rotterdam, Enkhuizen Dordrecht and Rhenen. After the war Wolter resumed his travels to England, where as well as the south coast, he now also visited London. He painted the Thames from different lo...
