Description

This antique oak coaching table is English and harks back to a time when horse-drawn coaches were the main form of transport. Space was at a premium but wealthier passengers still expected the comforts of home, so tables were designed with this in mind. This example, with its mellow tones, simple outline, and ingenious space-saving design would also make it a perfect choice if you are looking for an occasional or lamp table for a contemporary and period interior. Whilst it was being restored, we made every effort to retain the original surface, colour, and character of this charming table.
