Description

This fine quality French 19th century ormolu bronze mounted centre table attributed to François Linke, is a stunning and highly sought-after piece of furniture, reflecting the exquisite craftsmanship and artistry of the 19th century French furniture tradition. This elegant centre table is a masterpiece believed to be by the renowned French cabinetmaker François Linke. Linke was celebrated for his exceptional talent and innovation in the field of Art Nouveau and Belle Époque furniture design. The table features a luxurious marble top that adds a touch of opulence and durability. The base is exquisitely adorned with ormolu (gilded bronze) mounts, which are meticulously crafted to showcase intricate detailing, including foliate, acanthus leaf motifs and female masks. The table's X-shaped stretcher base is a stunning focal point, with an ormolu basket at its centre. The basket is not only a decorative element but also provides stability and structural integrity to the table. The entire design is a harmonious blend of classical and ornate elements, reflecting the 19th-century French design sensibilities. The ormolu mounts have been meticulously gilded to give them a radiant an...
