Description

Oil on canvas of a river landscape signed by the French artist Georges Griois (1872 - 1944). The painting is mounted in a green painted frame with gilt slip. Georges Griois was a post-impressionist painter who learned the art of drawing at a very young age at the School of Fine Arts in Boulogne-sur-Mer, notably with the famous Fauve painter Victor Dupont. He remained attached to this discipline throughout his life, which he put into practice both in the exercise of his profession as a decorator and as a painter. The man participated in the artistic life of Boulogne-sur-mer from 1901 by contributing to the founding of the Society of Fine Arts and Industrial Arts. Griois also participates in the intellectual and associative life of Boulogne-sur-Mer. He exhibited in Paris, Lorient, Roubaix and became a member of the Salon des Indépendants from 1924 until 1944. Griois draws and painted numerous paintings showing the harsh life of fishermen. To experience his art, he immersed himself in this part of Boulogne-sur-mer; he describes the streets of the sailors' quarter, the scenes of sea festivals, the portraits of these fishermen weathered by the salt and the cold, the herr...
