Description

This Hamadan runner from West Persia dates to the end of the 19th century and is a real beauty. It has a fine quality weave and very good natural dyes. The soft terracotta field is filled with a design of three medallions with myriad floral ornaments around them. It is a very charming yet elegant composition. The design is framed by matching corner spandrels and narrow borders. Note the very lovely abrashed green. It is a good size too. Cherished through the generations, this piece has survived in very good condition with a soft even texture to the pile and very minimal sizes of wear. Professionally cleaned.
