Description

French fruitwood farmhouse table with lovely patina and stretcher supported on turned legs. -Each head of the table features one functional and one false drawer. -Large surface area fit for all kitchen or dining purposes. -Gentle curves are carved into the stretcher's ends allowing for more comfortable footing whilst seated. -Robust turned legs support the table providing longevity for many more years. -Aged like fine French wine the chic, almost rustic, nature of the textured surface is reminiscent of it's origins and history. As an interior suggestion the table is suitable for larger open concept kitchen-dining areas but not limited to them. In very good condition commensurate to age and use with some previous signs of modification. One of the drawer's functionality has been removed. The table can be placed in many orientations without the hinderance of accessing one of the drawers when placed against a corner, wall or other furniture items. Date: Circa 1860 Material: Fruitwood Origin: France Drawer Inside - 67 x 49 cm Floor to Edge Height - 63 cm
