Description

An antique Malayer rug woven around 110 years ago, woven on an off white background and border colour, with warm red and blue tones, and muted green dyes too. An unusual large vase design in the main field, similar to that of the famous Zil-e Sultan design. Zil-e was the eldest of the Shah of Persia around 1840. As he was not in line to the throne he designed his own royal symbol which is the repeating bird and vase design we see in the centre of this rug, which actually became more famous and used in rugs. Nice original order, with a medium wool pile height and ends and side secured. Supplied with our anti-slip underlay, this helps add body and strength to a rug, thus preventing wear. If you would like to view this rug at home, please make contact in your preferred way. We love visiting customers at home all over the country showing our rugs in-situ, or at our barn showroom in Crondall, Surrey. Purchase this beautiful antique Malayer rug online via our secure checkout and we shall ship this rug safely to your home with the underlay included.
