Description

A Superb Quality George II Period, 18th Century, Mahogany Occasional, Or Centre, Table Having Superbly Figured Circular Tilting Top Of Exceptional Rich Untouched Colour And Patina, Over Bold Vase Turned Central Column With Elegant Tripod Legs And Original Pad Feet. This lovely mid 18th century table is one for the purists in terms of form as well as those looking for function. The simplicity of design and superbly figured timber used creates a real elegance which is rarely found. Another great feature is the lovely untouched colour and surface which again is extremely desirable. This georgian tripod table is a bit bigger than most, enough to make it significant in a room and to give it real presence, although it is not so large that it would be overpowering as such, indeed it can still be defined as an occasional or lamp table, as well as being defined as a small centre table of sorts. Overall the condition is excellent. As mentioned before it retains a quite exceptional colour and patina. Within that patina are a few old marks, scuffs, scrapes etc which have blended nicely into the surface and help create that lovely untouched surface. Structurally the table is ver...
