Description

We are delighted to offer this magnificent early Victorian solid silver ewer/pitcher made in London 1841 by the acclaimed Royal gold/silversmith, Garrard (marks for Robert Garrard). Garrard founded in 1735, surviving the test of time, still produces fine silverware and jewellery today and throughout history has been serving and producing exceptional pieces of silver and jewellery for the British Royal Family and the firm was appointed Crown Jeweller by Queen Victoria in 1843. It may therefore come as no surprise that this ewer lives up to such prestige with a spectacular design and ornate embellishments. The ewer has been fully gilt (gold on top of sterling silver) presenting a majestic and regal aura with splendour to immediately captivate and seize the gaze of any onlookers. It has been made from an excellent thick gauge of silver which results in a hefty and reassuring feel, whether held in hand to pour or when placed nobly on a table. This not only symbolises the affluence of being able to afford such heavy articles in precious metal but further displays the level of craftsmanship and time that would have gone into hammering and 'hand raising' such a piece from...
