Description

A rare stunning Royal Worcester porcelain cabinet plate hand painted with a scene titled 'Hastings castle' by famous John Stinton (1854–1956) and dated 1912. The plate has a central scene of the castle set in a landscape within a decorative border with small floral vignettes hand painted around the edge and set within a cobalt ground with finely gilded decoration, the shaped rim with a gilded finish. The plate is signed by J. Stinton within the painted scene and bears the title 'Hastings Castle' painted on the base with puce printed Royal Worcester mark including a date code mark for 1912. Hastings Castle is a huge part of England's history - Britain's first Norman castle, built by William the Conqueror in 1067. An iconic landmark of England's stormy past, Hastings Castle represents a significant step in the direction of England's development: historically, politically and culturally. Hand Painted during the 1912, this collector plate is a true testament to the English culture and heritage. This piece of art ...
