Description

A fine oil painting titled "The Pie Eaters" after the original work of art painted back in the mid 17th century by the renowned and talented Spanish artist Bartolomé Esteban Murillo. A well painted correct full scale version from the early 19th century (1800-1820) and finished with the same style of brush stroke and realism seen in the original work, very much like an old master. This fine version being painted with warmth and charm achieved in the original, currently in the Alte Pinakothek museum in the Kunstareal in Munich. CONDITION The condition of the canvas is good, having been relined many years ago, and still holding firm. The painted surfaces have some signs of being carefully retouched and lightly revarnished although this is difficult to see as the style and texture of this fine painting has a constant flow. Great warmth and charm is felt when in the presence of this amazing painting, which under subtle lighting has a depth and realism flowing from the characters, being two young hungry boys eating a pie under the nose of their dog. FRAME : An original plaster and gilt swept frame in good solid condition, having just a few old repairs. ABOUT THE ARTIST ...
