SoldItem Reference: SA107653*Date of manufacture: 19th Century

Description

A chance to acquire a rare hand coloured chromo-lithograph, produced from enlarging an original black and white photograph taken around the turn of the century, showing a panoramic and detailed view of the well known St. Marks Square in Venice Italy. Lots of pigeons are seen in the foreground, very much as it is today. The early period of dress that people are seen wearing, dates the large photographic image, as around 1890-1900, and is astonishingly clear for such an early image, which would have been taken with very basic equipment having been set up on a static fixed position tripod, to expose over at least a few minutes. Measurements Actual Photo: Height: 16 Inches Width: 20.5 Inches Measurement Including Frame: Height: 26 Inches Width: 32.5 Inches Condition of the photo-chromo-lithograph is very good throughout, with no discolouring. The photo is nicely presented in the original walnut frame with old glass still fitted over a card border, and backed with the old slithers of carcass thin wooden cut rough planks.
