Description

Circa 1900. A large quality brass and glass chandelier (recently rewired). The multi-tiered chandelier with a central cast brass shaft covered by faceted glass in sections. The top with curled brass arms all suspended with glass droplets, oval and glass flower-heads, with four shaped brass arms, issuing twelve scrolling arms each surmounted by a lamp with a faux candle upright and brass petal base. All of the arms are strewn with shaped glass similar to the top but in a slightly larger scale. All cascading down to the bottom of the chandelier and finishing with a large etched glass bauble.
