Description

This oil on canvas is a charming 19th-century homage to the Renaissance master Girolamo dai Libri. It captures the essence of the original work, "The Virgin and Child with Saint Anne," focusing on the lower register where three angelic musicians grace the scene. Their pastel robes blend harmoniously with the soft hues of the background, as they sit serenely at the throne's base. Each angel is engaged in a musical act; two pluck the strings of musical instruments, while the third, with a concentrated gaze, reads from an open music book. This tableau of divine harmony is not just a visual treat but also a narrative of celestial melody. The painting's provenance adds to its allure, having been discovered in the attics of a church, suggesting a history intertwined with sacred music and worship. Offered in its original country house condition, it retains the authenticity and character of a piece that has witnessed the passage of time, unaltered by restoration. This decorative copy not only pays tribute to Girolamo dai Libri's genius but also serves as a testament to the enduring appeal of religious art through the centuries.
