Description

This exquisite small box is designed for holding and displaying a small pocket watch. It is finely made in mahogany with brass bound edges and exotically veneered in tulipwood, amboyna and ebony. The hinged sloping top has a thick bevelled glass aperture to view the stored watch and look at the time. The watch is located in a separate lift out velvet lined tray and there is a space below for a watch chain and fob. The case has a brass button on the front edge which locks and unlocks the box when opened on its sturdy brass hinge. This is the finest watch case/holder we have ever offered for sale. It also comes with a solid silver pocket watch which fits the case and displays very well. The watch would need attention if it were required to work properly. English, circa 1860 Height 5.5cm x width 5.5cm x depth 8cm
