Description

Alexis De Leeuw Belgian, (1822-1900) A Winter's Day Oil on panel, signed Image size: 10.25 inches x 14.25 inches Size including frame: 18 inches x 22 inches Provenance: Cooling Galleries, 92 New Bond Street, London A lovely winter scene of figures on a frozen lake by Alexis De Leeuw. Two figures with a horse drawn sleigh can be seen in the foreground about to cross the ice. Other figures are depicted ahead of them making their way towards a windmill. Meanwhile, a man carries a sack of grain towards a building shown on the right side of the painting. Alexis De Leeuw was a Belgian landscape and animal painter who was born in Bruges in 1822. By 1858 he had emigrated to England where he found work as a Drawing Master at Grange Court School, Chigwell in Essex. After leaving the school, he set himself up as a professional artist living at 61 Greek Street, Soho from 1860 and gained work by advertising his services in the London Directories. He began exhibiting at the Royal Academy in 1864 with a painting entitled 'Children gathering wood'. He also exhibited at the British Institution, Suffolk Street and the Royal Hibernian Academy. In 1865, he married Rosalie Gregoire who w...
