Description

A lovely plain polished silver tablespoon with no patterns or engravings. On the back of the spoon are hallmarks for the London Assay Office, date letter for 1797, the duty mark and the maker's mark for the silversmith Richard Crossley. It would grace a dining table setting beautifully. Condition: In great antique condition, with some fine surface scratching commensurate with age. The spoon tip is still crisp and not worn down. Measurements: Length: 22 cm Bowl max measurements 7.5 x 4.2 cm Weight: 67g Weights and measurements are approximate.
