Description

Antique Edwardian Corner chair. A rare antique corner armchair, ideal for use with a davenport desk. We bring to you this excellent condition Edwardian Mahogany corner chair believed to be made around C1890. This very rare chair features a shaped arm rail with raised and inlaid centre back support which is raised on 3 square strung tapering pillars with ornate fretwork inlaid back slats in between. The chair has shaped and strung front rails giving its upholstered seat a lovely unusual curved shape. The chair's base consists of simple square legs with an X stretcher between. This chair would be ideal for using as an occasional desk chair for a small desk such as a Davenport, the seat shape allows the chair to tuck in close and rests into the corner of any room as an accent or chair for guests. This chair has a surprisingly ergonomic shape and is comfortable from having the seat-pad stripped to a bare frame and re-upholstered here, in house at Lincoln Restorations. For the top covering we chose a beautifully subtle floral gold and cream material which we feel suits the chair perfectly, complete with a matching gold braid. The chair has been re-glued so is perfectly solid...
