1 Large Important Historic Scottish Fine Art 18th Century Oil Painting Military Portrait Lieutenant General Sir James Campbell C1680-1745 Attributed William Aikman. Title "Portrait of Sir James Campbell C1680-1745" Attributed to William Aikman. Subject portrait of the known Scottish military General Sir James Campbell in half length front view facing the viewer he is wearing his best military dress traditional red uniform white neck cravat. Wearing his thick curled hair wig. His gaze is so strong fixed at the viewer he has full lips, rosy cheek complexion, clean shaven, with such strong masculine facial features. His eyes gaze is exceptional they seem to follow you as you move. Unsigned. Attributed to the artist William Aikman. Inscribed verso W Aikman. In our opinion this is one of his fine portrait works. Circa early 18th century. Medium oil on canvas Frame is an impressive size being 78.5 cm wide and 91.5 cm high. Having such beautiful detail. Set in a fine gilt frame which enhances this painting further. Artist biography William Aikman (24 October 1682 – 7 June 1731) a known Scottish old master artist.
