Description

Clockwise is delighted to present a fine and impressive George III thirty hour longcase clock having just enjoyed full and sympathetic restorations performed to the case, dial and movement. Dating from circa 1760, in lovely condition and standing an imposing 2.32m (7 feet 7 inches) tall, the solid oak case has a lovely patina to it. There are three wooden finials adorning the hood (the centre one has been removed to fit) atop mini-plinths within decorative wood carving to the front and sides. Flanking the hood door are pillars adorned with brass capitals and quarter pillars to the rear and there is a viewing window to each side of the hood. The long trunk (with door and working lock) leads down to mouldings atop a base with a plain pediment. The twelve inch dial is signed 'Samuel Buxton, Diss' and is in gorgeous condition being a fine example of a brass and silvered dial with a working date window and scrolled flower-based engraving to the dial centre and flowers to the brass spandrels. A working seconds sub-dial completes the impressive appearance. The birdcage rope-driven movement has been fully refurbished with new rope provided and the clock strikes the full hour...
