Description

This Edwardian Inlaid Occasional Elbow Chair has many nice details to elevate it, with the beautifully scrolled inlaid lines at the end of the arms just one of them. Further inlaid lines in the back help to enhance the look of the chair. The finely turned front legs and stretcher rail add further interest. Upholstered in a neutral fabric, finished off with decorative nailing, this chair would work well in a traditional or more contemporary décor. Very well presented in fully restored condition.
