Description

Impressive but unfussy four poster bed. This we suspect was likely made in the colonies for the English market around 1900, possibly a touch before. This example is carved all the way round the base and everything sits on the cabriole legs. This is a really good size to take a king size mattress. Many antique four post beds are of course quite small. This one has the turned pillars and the gallery around the top, just waiting for your own detailing if required. The original mattress base is present and in hard wood as of course is the whole bed, teak we suspect. It has been cleaned and refinished in our workshops so is in very nice tidy condition. The good looking base with the carving running all round is now clean and polished to show the work involved when it was made over 100 years ago. It comes into numerous pieces for easy installation so that is not a problem almost anywhere. All you need is your own mattress of choice. Keenly priced, why pay more? It can be collected or delivery can be organised. We will dismantle of course.
