Description

Lovely, antique deep ruffled hexagonal bowl decorated by Helena Wolfsohn, fully hand-painted, standing on six legs each decorated with different flowers. The bowl has an intricate ruffled shape with scalloped gilded rims. This large hexagonal porcelain bowl is decorated with hand-painted flowers and leaves in purple, pink, orange, blue, and yellow, featuring gilt rims and a scrollwork pattern along the edge and throughout the bowl. This beautiful snow-white porcelain bowl was decorated in Dresden at the factory of Helena Wolfsohn. The base bears the company mark and dates back to the late 19th century. Hand-painted items by Helena Wolfsohn are extremely detailed and well-designed. The Helena Wolfsohn factory did not exist for a long time (1879-1883), so items from this manufactory are rare. Helena Wolfsohn was a successor of her father, who ran a porcelain business under the name L. Meyer & Söhne. She operated in Dresden from 1843, buying white porcelain mostly in Meissen and decorating it in the style of the oldest Meissen pieces by Johann Gregorius Höroldt. She also used Watteau paintings as her inspiration. In 1878, the business was taken over by Helena's daughter, Emi...
