Description

This vase is a beautiful piece of Victorian art and an antique porcelain centerpiece. The cream and white porcelain vase features a flower bud design and is adorned with rich gold trim. Hand-painted floral decorations with gilt edgework on the bud enhance the vase's beauty and charm. At the bottom, it bears the impressed mark 'Moore' and the printed mark 'Moore Bros,' Reg. No. 190756. Moore Bros. was a prominent pottery company in England known for manufacturing high-quality pottery with intricate designs and patterns. The company specialized in producing decorative pieces, including vases, pitchers, plates, and other household items, at St. Mary's Works, Longton, Stoke-on-Trent, England. The company was founded in 1872 by Bernard Moore and his younger brother Samuel Vincent Moore. By 1881, they were employing 150 people at their pottery works. The business ended in 1905, and the molds and designs of Moore Bros. were sold. The St. Mary's works were purchased by Thomas C. Wild and later became the home of Royal Albert China. Bernard Moore took premises at Wolfe Street, Stoke, where he became a 'Consultant Potter.' He specialized in glaze effects and became renowned for his...
