Description

Probably one of the best 17thc English mortars I have bought in a long time....it is turned out of lignum vitae and has "double" raised rib and incised line decoration....the mortar is in very good condition with a superb natural colour and patina....the pestle although early and also made out of lignum vitae, I feel is associated.... probably being made in the 18thc....also in very good condition with incised ring decoration and a very good colour. English. C1660-80.
