Description

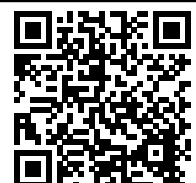

This rare and charming little rug was probably made as a wedding rug for the bride and groom to stand on and take their marriage vows. The brick-red ground contains three vertical rows of four Ersary guls or tribal crests. Made during the last quarter of the 19th century, the rug has overall wear but small and good enough to hang on the wall and enjoy this work of tribal woven art. Size: 79cm x 88cm (2' 7" x 2' 11").
