Description

An exquisite antique porcelain figurine depicting a finely dressed gentleman in a purple coat adorned with gilt decoration, a bronze-colored hat with a blue bow, and gold-buckled shoes. The piece is beautifully glazed and features finely hand-painted polychrome overglaze details. It stands on a Rococo-style round base with gold accents, adding a touch of elegance and luxury to the artwork. This exceptional figurine is a true work of art, distinguished by its intricate detail and meticulous craftsmanship, particularly evident in the delicately sculpted face and fingers. Each element of the composition is rendered with great precision, showcasing the skill and artistry of the maker. The underside bears the blue crosier mark of Dressel, Kister & Cie. The Dressel, Kister & Cie porcelain factory was established in 1853 when Johann Friedrich Andreas Kister, Mr. Dressel, and another associate purchased a factory in Passau, Germany. The company gained a reputation for producing high-quality porcelain figurines and was particularly successful in exporting to France and Italy during its early years. In 1907, the comp...
