Description

A superb quality English early 19th century (circa 1820) 'Bouille' centre table in the French style and of fine proportions, in very good, original condition in the manner of Andre-Charles Bouille, possibly by Thomas Parker. The table consists of a rectangular top with superb profusely inlaid bouille decoration of engraved brass inlaid into a red tortoiseshell ground, an intricate bouille panel to the centre with inlaid decoration of floral and foliate designs, dogs, birds and rabbits within a brass inlaid border, leading out to superb foliate bouille decoration with an ebonised border and fine quality outer ormolu moulding. All four sides consisting of profusely inlaid bouille foliate decoration making the table freestanding, each panel having a shaped apron, the front having a secret frieze drawer with hidden release button and consisting of a central panel with scrolling ormolu mount and ormolu moulding, the sides with central ormolu mask and ormolu moulding, the back being the same design as the front. To the top of each leg the table having fine quality ormolu mounts in the form of a satyr, the elegant cabriole legs with bouille decoration and terminating with ormolu fol...
