Description

An elegant late 19th-century dresser in oak, crafted in the Queen Anne style, exemplifies superior quality and classic design. It stands on gracefully curved cabriole legs and separates into two sections for ease of transport, without compromising its solid construction. The upper section features two cupboards on either side, while the lower section includes two cupboards and two drawers, all adorned with their original brass handles. The dresser boasts a beautifully designed facade with a magnificent grain and rich colour, showcasing the exceptional quality of the oak. In good solid condition, this dresser combines functionality with timeless beauty, making it a striking addition to any home.
