Description

This exquisite large 19th-century dining table, meticulously crafted from fine mahogany, is a stunning example of classic elegance and exceptional craftsmanship. The table stands proudly on elaborately decorative turned legs, each fitted with their original brass casters, adding both functionality and a touch of sophistication. Designed for versatility, the table includes three additional leaves that effortlessly extend its length, making it perfect for hosting gatherings and special occasions. Brass clips are provided to secure the leaves firmly in place, ensuring a seamless and stable surface. The pull-out mechanism is smooth and efficient, allowing for easy adjustment of the table size to suit various needs. The mahogany wood displays a beautiful, rich grain and deep colour, highlighting the table's grandeur. It remains in excellent condition, a testament to the high-quality materials and meticulous care it has received over the years. This dining table not only serves as a practical and stylish centrepiece for any dining area but also embodies the timeless charm and luxury of 19th-century furniture design.
