Description

This large and impressive Edwardian tapered-legged armchair stands well and looks great. Its oversized proportions make it a perfect chair for reading, lounging, and even storytelling, as it's big enough for two, albeit an extra little one. It is being offered in an unrestored condition but is eminently useable as it is. As you would expect, the frame is of superior quality to many modern equivalents, making it a perfect candidate for re-upholstery if so desired. The castors are original and the armchair is structurally sound. Whether you are looking for a chair to refurbish or an additional fire-side chair for the winter, this antique armchair will suit your needs. The seat measures 57 cm deep x 44 cm wide.
