Description

This very pretty antique pendant started out as part of a bigger piece of Georgian jewellery, possibly an earring or a necklace, and has at some time been converted to a very wearable piece which can be hung on a chain or ribbon. The pendant is solid silver, set with beautiful sparkling old foil-backed black dot rock crystals, including some lovely cushion cuts. The Georgians (c.1714-1837) would paint a black dot on the bottom end of paste stones (the culet) to help give an illusion of depth and make them look more like real diamonds as they glittered in the candlelight. In excellent antique condition, with a little wear to the facets and some of the foil. One of the stones looks like a historic replacement, it's an old cut but does not have a black dot. Size: Approximately 2.5 x 3cm, 3.6cm total length including the bail. Weight: 5.4g. We currently have a number of lovely Georgian pieces just in (see final photo) which are being added to the shop, see our other listings for more details :) FREE INTERNATIONAL SHIPPING! Antique boxes pictured are for display only and not included unless specified; your item will come in a new box.
