Description

George Grainger's Worcester porcelain manufactory is best known for its ornate wares with large cut-outs, popular in the mid-nineteenth century. This small vase, which we discovered, is a rare and authentic Grainger piece made circa 1850. The pedestal vase is mounted on a triangular green plinth, with the body raised on three leaf-shaped feet. The vase is decorated with hand-painted oval gilt enamel panels featuring flowers on a white background. Additional panels depict mystical masked heads with golden horns. The neck of the vase, which widens towards the top, is adorned with a cut-out pattern that is richly gilded. The vase bears the very rare hallmark 'G. Grainger, 19, Foregate, Worcester'. Grainger's Worcester Porcelain Company was founded by Thomas Grainger and his partner John Wood in 1801. They initially began by decorating porcelain blanks made by other companies. By 1806, they had opened a shop on Foregate Street in Worcester. In 1807, Grainger & Wood began producing their own porcelain and quickly gained a strong reputation for creating both useful and decorative pieces. Rich patterns, such as Japanese-style Imari, and exquisite tea ware provided serious competi...
