Description

Antique 3-pillar dining table This Antique 3 pillar dining table was made circa 1900 using redundant period timber. The cabinetmakers in the period had a wonderful selection of Georgian timber that they could use to make these characterful dining tables. This dining table has the 3-pillars supporting the rounded mahogany top, that has a line box wood stringing. The pillars at each end have the usual 3 legs bases and the central pillar the quadruple support. Each leg with the cast brass claw toes and the rolling castors under. The table has 2 additional leaves that you can put in place so that you can have the dining option you need for the guests you are entertaining. This dining table seats a comfortable 12 when the leaves are in place. You may use this table with none of the leaves, 1 leaf in situ or both. Imagine the fun you will have when your family and friends visit.
