Description

A delicate scene depicting a hare watching a covey of grouse titled "at Ptarmigan Hill in Winter". Signed and dated 1900 lower right. We are not completely sure about the proportion of the mixed media pencil/watercolour used in this so realistic representation, heightened with touches of white/light blue body colour. On pasteboard (see image), in its original oak frame. Dimensions (including frame) 59cm x 45cm. Please see images for the condition and we can provide more images upon request. Edward Neale Artwork 1833-1904. Draughtsman on wood and illustrator of birds and natural history active in London contributed to Yarrell's 'History of British Birds,' 1871-85.
