Description

This exceptional still life by Maud Frances Eyston Sumner, one of South Africa's most esteemed artists, is a truly remarkable piece. Its vibrant colors and large, highly decorative composition make it a standout example of her work. Having remained in the same family's possession for many decades, it is now coming fresh to the market, accompanied by provenance from the family. The painting, measuring 107cm x 95cm framed, with the artwork itself being 71cm x 58cm, has been meticulously cared for. The colors remain fresh and vivid, underscoring the excellent condition of this beautifully preserved artwork. This is a rare opportunity to acquire a piece of significant artistic heritage. Sumner's mastery of color and composition is evident in this stunning still life, showcasing her renowned skill and artistic vision. A rare and valuable work from one of South Africa's most celebrated artists. Eight years ago a similar theme painting by the same artist sold for in excess of £9000. An academic career. On attaining an MA in English Literature from Oxford University in 1922 she persisted in her quest to study fine art and in 1925 enrolled at the Westminster School of Art in ...
