Description

This elegant Victorian oak window seat or hall bench showcases timeless craftsmanship and a charming antique aesthetic. The rectangular top, featuring canted corners and a stepped lip, boasts a richly figured grain that adds depth and character to the piece. At either end, decorative, stylised turned bolsters nicely complement the overall design. We can strip this back to a lighter natural oak at a small extra cost. The bench stands on tapered and turned legs, combining both style and stability. It offers versatile use, making it ideal as a window seat, hall bench, or kitchen seating. In good, original condition, with a lovely patina that highlights its age and history. There is minor loss which is barely noticeable to the rear lip but this does not detract from its overall beauty or function. A wonderful addition to any home looking for a touch of period elegance and charm. Seat height is 44cm.
