Description

Silvered bronze Art Deco figure of a young semi-nude dancer designed by the French sculptor Jean Pierre Morante and made in the 1920s. She is performing the splits and arching her back with her arms extended. The small amount of coloured detail is subtly muted extending as it does just to the headdress and shoes. Edited with superb detail at the Paris foundry of Marcel Guillemard and mounted on a stepped and shaped verdigris marble base. Signed Morante and marked bronze, also showing the founders name.
