Description

Antique Engraving: "Panoramic View of Tunbridge Wells" A finely detailed, large antique engraving of Royal Tunbridge Wells as it appeared in Georgian times, this piece captures the town's historic charm and architecture. The print highlights the elegant Georgian buildings designed by Decimus Burton (1800-1881), many of which remain today. Published by E. Smith of Tunbridge Wells, the engraving is based on an original sketch by a Lady artist. This piece is framed and glazed, with light age-related foxing and marks visible under the glass, consistent with its history. A wonderful addition for those who appreciate British heritage and architectural history.
