Description

Dating to the last quarter of the 19th century this sword stick is by the renowned makers - Howell of London. It features a push button lock/release and an etched blade with "Peace with Honour" on one side and "Defence not Defiance" on the other and it ends in a steel and brass ferrule. It is generally in very good condition except for the end of the handle which has been chipped. I thought about sanding down it but I think it is better with its war wound showing. Size: Length - 35" (89cm) Blade Length - 28" (71cm)
