Description

This is a good quality mahogany frame Leather armchair from the Regency Revival period circa 1920. The chair has a lovely antique colour with a good strong supple leather which still has a good life left in it. The separate squab seat cushion is slightly more worn with a couple of small repairs although still perfectly serviceable. The leather is brass studded to the frame and the neat straight mahogany legs have thier original brass cup castors. The chair is very comfortable to sit in and is a nice size at 94 cms high 70 cms wide by 70 cms deep. UK delivery can be arranged with our trusted furniture courier and costs £65 plus vat to most destinations.
