Description

Georgian oak pot board dresser This Georgian oak pot board dresser was made circa 1830. Having an open plate rack with cup hooks, a very attractive shaped apron, that sits on the dresser base, which has a very unusual drawer formation. Consisting of 3 wide drawers and 2 half drawers each side of the central drawer, all with the original brass swing handles with backplates. Under the drawers is a wavy apron and the fine turned front legs join the pot board and the usual square back legs. This makes for a wonderful attractive dresser, combined with a lovely colour and patina. When this is in your home it is bound to give you plenty of enjoyment and the bonus of the great storage and display it gives you.
