Description

An imposing 18th-century North Italian commode crafted from solid walnut, displaying a rich patina that has developed beautifully over time. Originating from the Lombardi region, it features four generously sized drawers with their original intricate metal handles, reflecting the high level of craftsmanship typical of Italian furniture from this period. The commode's architectural form is enhanced by paneled sides and a sturdy base with carved bracket feet, giving it both presence and durability. The warm tones of the walnut, combined with the subtle detailing, make this commode a statement piece that would suit a range of interiors. Its size and design offer practical storage while providing a striking focal point in any room. Height - 111cm Width - 151cm Depth - 58cm
