Description

This is an antique Gothic revival hall table. A Scottish, mahogany console, side table or buffet server, dating to the Victorian period, circa 1870. Beautiful example of Scottish craftsmanship, with tasteful Gothic overtones. Displaying a desirable aged patina and in good order throughout. Select stocks resplendent in caramel hues with fine grain interest. Good, consistent colour to the quality wax polish finish. Apex form to the up stand, with a shield medallion to the centre. Generous top surface finished with canted corners and tapering edge. Block shoulders enclose a deep apron, with a shaped sash across its lower edge. Superb concealed drawer to the right-hand side, with aged repository label. Standing upon tapering legs with lobed knees and twist fluting over bun feet. This is a fine antique hall table, with appealing colour and graced with Gothic revival taste. Solid joints and construction, delivered ready for the home.
